

Hail to the Chef

Since it's a room you'll be using several times a day, and the place where people often congregate during a party, be sure that you make the kitchen a point of emphasis. Whether you opt for deep, rich colors, or bright and cheerful ones, the finishes throughout will be important. Manmade surfaces, or natural stone? Reclaimed wood floors, cork, or ceramic? Modern or traditional? Whatever you choose, remember that you want to continue the feel and look of the rest of the house. Don't forget the function of the kitchen; there should be a convenient flow from refrigerator to sink to stove. Depending upon how much you entertain, you may want separate warming or cooler drawers and several dishwashers. For the serious cook, a prep island with sink and disposal is a must. ▶
